USDA Veterinary Medicine Loan Repayment Program Currently Accepting Applications

AUSTIN - The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced that applications are now being taken for the USDA's Veterinary Medicine Loan Repayment Program (VMLRP.) The Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC) facilitated a Texas stakeholder working group to identify areas in need of rural vet practitioners. Eight multi-county areas in Texas have been designated as VMLRP shortage situations. To view the designated Texas shortage situation counties, visit

Authorized by the National Veterinary Medical Services Act (NVMSA,) the program helps qualified veterinarians offset a significant portion of debt they incurred while pursuing their veterinary medicine degrees in return for their service in designated high-priority veterinary shortage situations for an allotted period of time. If a qualified veterinarian commits to at least three years in providing veterinary services in a designated veterinary shortage area, USDA's National Institute of Food & Agriculture (NIFA) may repay up to $25,000 of their student loan debt per year.

Loan repayment benefits are limited to payments of the principal and interest on government and commercial loans received for the attendance at an accredited college of veterinary medicine resulting in a degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine or equivalent. All eligible veterinarians, including women, individuals from underrepresented groups, and persons with disabilities are encouraged to apply for the loan repayment program. To learn more about how to apply, visit

The VMLRP application cycle is currently open and ends Friday, May 31, 2013. A veterinarian may submit only one application per cycle. NIFA will host webinar sessions on May 3 and 15 for individuals who may be interested in applying this year.
